Railroad Strike Called

Four Major Rail Facilities Would Be Affected, But It May Be Delayed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(P)—A rail union today called a strike for next Thursday on four major railroad facilities. The government promptly acted to head it off.

The walkout on three rail systems and at the St. Louis Terminal was ordered for 3 p. m. (local standard time) Thursday by David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

Shortly afterwards, Chairman Leverett Edwards of the National (Railway) Mediation Board sent a message to the White House saying an emergency existed under railway labor law.

Truman Can Name Board
This enables President Truman to create a board to look into the issues of the dispute and recommend settlement terms. Under rail labor law, the union is committed, once the board is created, to refrain from a walkout for 30 days while the board holds hearings and writes its findings, and for 30 days thereafter.

Thus, naming of an emergency board by President Truman will have the effect of postponing any strike for up to 60 days.

Even after that, the government could seek a court injunction to halt a strike then, because the railroads are being technically operated by the army under government seizure, and the workers are employed by the government from a legal standpoint.

'Only Course' For Workers
Robertson said a strike is "the only course left open to obtain long overdue increases in wages and improved working conditions." The dispute has been going on for two years.

The strike was termed a "progressive" one, meaning that while the walkout initially was to affect four key railroads and their subsidiaries, other rail systems could be struck later.

The four lines on which the walkout Thursday was ordered are:

Chicago and Northwestern railroad.

Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis.

Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

Louisville and Nashville railroad.

The union represents 105,000 rail firemen, engineers and yardmen, but only a maximum of 75,000 of these members are affected in the current dispute. The union announced Oct. 24 that a membership vote favored a strike 10 to one.

A 13 Month Deadlock
Robertson said that for thirteen months there has been a deadlock on demands for a general wage increase for all its members and a 40-hour week for men in yard service. The latter now work a 48-hour week.

The union's most recent demands have been for an 18½ cent hourly general increase, plus an additional 15½ cents hourly for men in yard service until such time as the 40-hour work week is adopted in the yard service.

The carriers had offered to meet substantially the union's money demands but had insisted on working rule changes to which the union objected.

President Expected to Make Foreign Policy Address Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(P)—President Truman will make what is expected to be a highly significant foreign policy address to the nation tomorrow night (9:30 to 10 p. m., CST) from his White House office.

It will be carried on all major radio and television networks. It coincides with the opening of the sixth general assembly of the United Nations in Paris.

Although no further details were given here, it has been speculated both in Washington and Paris that Mr. Truman may outline a new disarmament program.

Some believe the proposal will call for a world court of both conventional and atomic weapons, among other things.

Eva Peron Undergoes An Operation Today

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 6.—(P)—Eva Peron underwent a successful major operation today and her condition is good, the government announced in a radio broadcast.

The wife of President Juan D. Peron has been ill since Sept. 21 with what doctors said was acute anemia.

The brief radio announcement from the president's press office gave no details about the operation, nor disclose the specific condition which made the operation necessary. There has been complete official silence on this.

Bad Roads Keep Good Roads Group Away

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 6.—(P)—A meeting of the Missouri good roads association here today was cancelled because of yesterday's snow storm, it was announced by J. H. Karsten of Kennett, president of the association.

UN Spokesman Say Reds Would Quit Without Formal Armistice

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 6.—(P)—The United Nations command spokesman said today the Reds would quit the fighting in Korea without signing a formal armistice.

The UN, he said, will have none of that.

Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, the spokesman, told newsmen the Reds tipped their hand Tuesday when they rejected the latest Allied proposal. That was an offer Monday to set aside the stalemate cease-fire buffer zone issue for the moment and take up other items that must be settled before a formal armistice can be signed.

Demand Buffer Zone Plan
The Reds demanded, Nuckols said, immediately "final, formal solution" of the buffer zone matter before proceeding to the rest of the agenda.

Nuckols said this would in effect allow a de facto cease-fire—no war to the fighting without formal agreement — and let armistice talks drag on indefinitely.

Nuckols said he felt the Red rejection was flat and final. Asked how final he thought it was, Nuckols replied: "Only time will say how irrevocable it is."

Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodess, chief of the UN buffer zone subcommittee, told newsmen immediately after Tuesday's single session he thought the turn down was "not a final, formal, irrevocable rejection."

Reasons for Non-Signing
There was speculation the Reds wanted an unofficial armistice (1) to get relief from Allied air poundings, (2) because it might give them a great amount of the West's available military forces, and (3) because they can't stand another UN offensive.

Naugel Believes Community Chest Will Reach Goal

Harry Naugel, who presided over a meeting of the Community Chest workers Monday night, at which a general discussion of how to finish the drive was given thorough coverage, stated that he believed the goal would be reached.

The meeting was held at the Chamber of Commerce office with the following present: Bert Hathaway, Jake Kraus, Mrs. Cline Cain, Kenneth Love, I. H. Reed, Frank Keyser, Mrs. Lawrence Geiger, Claude Boul, Gano Stearns, R. A. Malone, Major O. C. Aaserude, Mrs. Fredonia Kingsbury, Mrs. C. H. Gooch, Jack Cunningham, Oliver Steed, Mrs. William Ward, George Lockett, and Lloyd Phillips.

Mr. Naugel asked the workers to complete their districts as quickly as possible and turn in the money that the drive may be brought to a close.

Anyone who has not been contacted is asked to mail or take their contribution to the Community Chest headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce.

Tries to Talk After Being In Coma Since Returned From Death

LONG BEACH, Calif., Nov. 6.—(P)—Melvin Hewitt, the man revived by medical science 15 minutes after death, tried to talk yesterday.

He had been in a coma for more than a month. Then yesterday doctors said Hewitt sat up in bed, made unintelligible sounds, moved his arms and legs and counted his fingers.

"He has no mental capacity at all, however," said one doctor, "and can't understand when you speak to him."

Hewitt collapsed on the sidewalk in front of an El Monte bar Oct. 4. His heart had stopped, and companions rushed him to a clinic where doctors cut open his chest and massaged his heart back to activity.

16 Inches At Springfield
C. C. Willford, weather observer at Springfield, reported 16 inches of snow fell there in the last 24 hours but about three inches had melted.

It was the fifth time in 63 years that snow more than a foot deep had fallen at Springfield. Fifteen inches fell there Thanksgiving night in 1934.

Snow drifted up to five feet

Assistant Home Agent Goes to Lawrence County
Miss Mary Ellen Leonard, who has been serving as assistant home agent in Pettis county for several months, has been appointed home agent for Lawrence county. Her headquarters are in Mt. Vernon.

President Truman said today the reason for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's visit here was to discuss Europe's problem of maintaining economic stability while rearming.

And, he declared, he fears "much trouble."

Mr. Truman's statement of why he called Eisenhower home came shortly before the general left by plane at 11:21 a. m., EST, to return to his European defense command in France.

The president made it in an extemporaneous speech to the National Society of Cartoonists. He left many questions unanswered but running through his talk was the hint of a developing new crisis for the western world.

Concern In Britain
It came against the background of the new British government's expressed concern — voiced in the king's address to parliament — over the deterioration of Britain's economic affairs and the threat of inflation.

If any decisions were reached in Eisenhower's conferences here, neither he nor the President disclosed them.

Eisenhower did drop a hint that one matter discussed was the question of arming his forces and its relation to the Korean war.

Not Unmindful of Korea
He said it wanted to make it plain that neither he nor any members of his staff were at all "unmindful of the great conflict going on in Korea" or were asking for anything that is needed to carry on the fighting in Korea.

"Any soldier who would ask that would not be serving in the American tradition," he declared.

As to the situation in Europe, Eisenhower reported "great progress" in the combined rearmament program but said he didn't want to paint "too rosy" a picture.

Young Democrats Meeting For Tonight Is Postponed
The meeting of the Pettis County Young Democratic club, scheduled for tonight, has been postponed.

Nuckols said the only incentive that makes the Reds keep talking is "continuing pressure of possible hostilities."

An afternoon session was cancelled, presumably so the Reds could study further the four-point Allied program. The subcommittee will meet again at 11 a. m. tomorrow (8 p. m. CST, Tuesday.)

Chinese Reds Take Hill
In the battle zones, meanwhile, Chinese infantrymen captured a third hill on the expanding western front and held two other peaks against Allied counterattacks.

The Reds won three other hills but lost them again.

The three-day-old Red offensive hit United Nations forces from points west of Yenchon, eight miles north of the 38th parallel, to the hills north of Chorwon, western anchor of their old iron triangle.

Snow Buries Most Of South Missouri Under 6 to 20 Inches

One of the Heaviest November snow storms in history blanketed southern Missouri today, blocking highways and closing schools. One death in St. Louis was attributed to the storm.

Bus schedules in southwestern Missouri were cancelled and trains were delayed.

The heaviest fall, 20 inches was reported in the Nevada-El Dorado portion of the state.

Hotels and tourist camps were jammed in the Springfield area. Stranded tourists were taken in to private homes at Marshfield.

U. S. highway 66 from Springfield east to Lebanon was jammed with stalled cars in the ditches.

Big 3 Meeting Urged as U. N. Session Opens

French President Wants Churchill, HST, Stalin Session

PARIS, Nov. 6.—(P)—President Vincent Auriol of France opened the sixth session of the United Nations general assembly today with an appeal for a Truman-Churchill-Stalin meeting in Paris during this session to discuss world tensions.

Auriol told delegates of 60 nations that such a meeting would be welcomed with joy throughout the world.

The French president did not mention Prime Minister Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill or President Truman by name, but referred to them as the "distinguished men towards whom all anxious eyes are turned." He added he was sure that a meeting of three in private and within the scope of the U. N. could make progress at easing tensions.

Soviet foreign minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky was at his desk in the hall as Auriol spoke. So were U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, British foreign secretary Anthony Eden, and French foreign minister Robert Schuman. The western Big Three foreign ministers hurried to the opening session after a final conference at the French foreign ministry to map strategy on an American peace plan which is expected to dominate this session.

After the conference, Big Three spokesmen would say only that the foreign ministers discussed all items on the assembly agenda, plus "other general questions."

In London, a British foreign office spokesman said Britain would welcome any move toward easing East-West tension. He said Auriol's proposal "is one, however, that will need careful study."

British officials said it seemed likely the western foreign ministers discussed the Auriol proposal in their pre-session conference. Churchill long has championed a direct approach to Stalin on east-west frictions.

President Truman has replied to previous suggestions of a Big Four meeting that he would be glad to meet Stalin in Washington. Stalin never has been willing to go far from the USSR. There is no indication that either has changed his mind.

SNOWBOUND STREET LOOKS LIKE SEDALIA

Ike Will Speak If Duty Calls

If Such Time Does Come, He Will Say So Both Positively And Definitely

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(P)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today "if the time ever comes" for him to speak out on politics he'll do so immediately.

He declared, however, that "as of this moment" his job as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe is much too important for him to take any political stand.

He told a news conference that no one has been authorized to act for him in an Eisenhower-for-President movement, adding that if he feels it his duty to speak "no one will need to speak for me."

Eisenhower met with reporters a few minutes before taking off in his plane, the "Columbine," on his return to his headquarters near Paris.

Talked to Sen. Duff
He said he spoke on the telephone—presumably earlier today—with Senator Duff (R-Pa.), a leader in the drive to get the Republican presidential nomination for Eisenhower.

Eisenhower said he and Duff discussed "some subjects of mutual interest" to both of them but when asked if Duff talked over with "Eisenhower for President" boom the general replied with a hearty laugh:

"No, he didn't. 'I didn't know it had reached the proportions of a boom.'"

Eisenhower said that when he accepted the combined western defense command last year he told President Truman he hoped the assignment wouldn't last "too long."

Present Post Indefinite
He declined to say how long he expected to continue in the post, saying, "The subject never came up" in his conversations yesterday with President Truman.

The key statement in Eisenhower's exchange with reporters on politics appeared to be this one:

"If the time ever comes I feel that my duty compels me to say a word of any kind I will do so positively and definitely."

Although saying he had not authorized anyone to act for him in the political field, the general added:

"No one can be authorized to act for anyone. If I have friends that have been my friends for so long they believe they know how I would react that is their business and I never interfere in their business."

Now Has Most Vital Job
Eisenhower said with great emphasis he believes the building up of Western Europe's defenses is the most important assignment he could fill at this time.

He said this job represents an American investment of billions of dollars and is vitally necessary if a drastic change in the American way of life is to be avoided.

Then he demanded: "Is there any person here who would expect me to express a partisan preference while I am on this job?"

Truman Called Ike To Discuss Europe

Council Commences Procedure On Five New Sewer Projects

Four Other District Sewers Brought Nearer Reality; Blinker Light Ordered For 3rd & Grand; BPWC Members Attend

In a comparatively short and business like session, the Sedalia City Council Monday night ordered an ordinance drawn for a blinker light to be erected at Third and Grand, started proceedings toward the establishment of five new sewer districts, moved four other sewer districts toward final completion and considered other items of a routine nature.

Mrs. Everett White, president, and a group of members of the Business and Professional Women's club were present along with a few others to hear the proceedings.

Mrs. White explained the club members were present to carry out a project of the club's legislative committee which is for members to become more familiar with the operation of legislative bodies.

School Patrons Request Sign
Councilman H. O. Berry of the First Ward reported a number of patrons of Mark Twain school had requested moves to slow traffic on Third street and Grand avenue. He requested a stop-and-go sign for the intersection, then accepted an amendment to his motion changing to blinker lights after some discussion was held. It was pointed out that a stop-and-go light is to be installed at Third and Missouri, and this would tend to slow traffic on Third.

The third reading and final passage was given for the ordinance creating sewer district 83. The completion report of the engineer was read and accepted for sewer district 76. The contract for sewer district 80 was let to the Atkinson Construction Co., on a bid of $2,387. Final passage of the ordinance for district 82 was given, and advertising was ordered for the bids.

Easements Slow Project
It was reported by Mayor Herb Studer, at the request of Councilman Clyde Swafford, that the securing of easements for a proposed sewer district on South Lamine had delayed this project. The mayor said the city is working to get the necessary easements and hopes to be able to obtain them in the near future.

First readings were given ordinances creating sewer districts (numbered 84, 85, 86, 87 and 88. (Descriptions of these district areas will be found in a separate account on page seven.)

An ordinance was ordered drawn to accept the plat of the new Sunset sub-division on West Broadway, just west of the intersections of highways 65, south and 50.

Another ordinance was ordered drawn for the installation of parking meters in the 200 block on West Main. The meters are on hand, the council was told by Chief of Police Edgar Neighbors.

A petition asking that 11th street be closed between Arlington and Madison was referred to the street and alley committee.

Mutual Aid Plan Studied
Mayor Studer told the council of the proposed plan for the formation of a mutual fire protection association between Sedalia, Sweet Springs, Marshall, Boonville, Car-

Pigs Feet, Pigs Tails Lead to Dispute; Wife Shot Fatally by Mate

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—(P)—Katherine Reynolds, shot after an argument over pickled pigs' feet, died Monday after living more than three weeks with two bullets in her head.

Mrs. Reynolds, 79, was shot Oct. 11 after she objected to her husband's buying pigs' feet rather than pigs' tails.

Police Inspector Tom Cahill said her husband, John, shot Mrs. Reynolds then killed himself.

All 43rd In Germany
BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Nov. 6.—(P)—The entire 43rd division is now in Germany, the U.S. army reported today.

Last elements of the National Guard division arrived yesterday aboard the troopship Gen. R. M. Blatchford.

Another Tracking Snow Put On Snowboard, Measures 7 In.

Chalk up another "tracking snow" on the snowboard. Not that your tracks show for long in the snow, but you can make them.

So, watching to see if we'll be shoveling off the sidewalks 31 times, plus the extras a continuous snow makes to keep the walks clean, here it is:

SNOWBOARD
First snow October 31
Snows to date ..... 2

The Democrat's yard stick, used in measuring the snowfall today, went down 34½ inches before it found solid footing. Whoops, that was in a drift we had stepped in.

On level ground, where the wind kept the top layers drifting, the fall measured seven inches.

But it was rather pretty, early this morning, if you were brave enough to get your chin off your chest and look the weather square in the face.

Churchill Tightens His Grip

Says His Gov't Found Nation Is Nearing Bankruptcy, Warns Of Unusual Moves

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(P)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared today his new Conservative government found Britain on the road to "national bankruptcy."

He warned the nation it is entering a period of emergency during which he will be forced to take "exceptional measures."

A story of King George's address will be found on page 6.

"We are convinced," he told the House of Commons, "that it is necessary to present the facts plainly to the nation in order that everyone might realize where we stand."

In addition to stringent financial action, Churchill said he will ask soon for a secret session of Commons at which he will give full information on the country's defense position.

On finances, Churchill said: Buy More Than Afford

"We do not believe that a full and frank statement of our position will aggravate the loss of confidence abroad which has been taking place." He said figures he cited "mean in short that we are buying more than we can afford to pay for from current earnings and this can only in time lead to national bankruptcy."

Churchill did not specify just what remedies he has in mind, but said:

"We feel that a solemn resolve by parliament and by the British people to set their house in order without delay and the measures necessary to give effect to this resolve will act as a tonic to our credit all the world over."

Financial Position Grave
Churchill described the nation's financial position as "the gravest since we have to bring before the House"—so bad that "confidence in sterling is impaired."

He said unless "present trends and policies" were reversed the gold-dollar reserves of the sterling bloc might slump more than $600 million pounds ($1,680,000,000) in 1952.

These reserves are the entire dollar capita of the countries using the pound sterling as the basis of national currency. The reserves would be down to slightly more than $3 billion.

Churchill opened debate on the traditional speech of the king of the formal opening of the new parliament. The king's speech, prepared by the government, declared that rising inflation "threatens the maintenance of our defense program."

The speech declared also the Conservative party's determination to nullify Labour's nationalization of the iron and steel industry. It voiced British determination to continue a firm policy both in Iran and Egypt.

Calls for Negotiation
Churchill called again, as he has been doing for two years, for an attempt to abate the cold war "by negotiation at the highest level from strength and not from weakness." He said he and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden "still believe in a supreme effort to bridge the gulf between the two worlds."

"Never," thundered Churchill, "must we admit that a third world war is inevitable."

Former Prime Minister Attlee, now leader of the Labor party, opposition in the House of Commons, described the king's speech setting forth Tory policies as "one of the thinnest that I have ever seen."

"It exhibits no clear line of policy whatever except negation," Attlee said.

S-H-Houstonia Basketball Games Tonight Postponed

Sacred Heart high school and Houstonia high were slated to open the home basketball season at Sacred Heart gym tonight, but the games have been postponed. The obvious reason for the cancellation will be found out-of-doors.

COLDER TONIGHT
Central Missouri: Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday. Low tonight near 20. High Wednesday in the 30s.

The temperature: 22 degrees at 7 a. m.; 38 at 1 p. m.; 40 at 2 p. m.

Sorosis Speaker Tells Of Progress In Modern Aircraft

"The marvel of our day is the airplane," said T. L. Yount, electronics engineer with the airplane division of McDonnell Aircraft Corp., St. Louis, in his talk Monday afternoon before Sorosis, "and improvements in it are still unlimited."

Mr. Yount interspersed his talk with films showing several of the planes, explaining the various parts, how they work and the service in which the planes are used.

The first film was of the Phantom, a bomber which was first designed for the navy in 1939 and by 1943 had been greatly improved. This great plane is already obsolete. The age of progress is so fast, said Mr. Yount, that they no sooner get out in combat until there is a need for a faster, better plane.

The speaker told of the ejection seat which is necessary in planes that are not easy to bail out of. One of the first three men to have been saved by the ejection seat was Logan McMillin. Mr. Yount said, and McMillin didn't think much of the new invention at the start. The pilot puts his feet in stirrups and when something goes wrong with the plane the seat is blown out, with the pilot in it, about 50 feet away from the plane and from the chair he opens his parachute.

McMillin had the experience of something going wrong with his plane and trying out the ejection chair. A calm, cool type of man, he found himself sitting in a chair way up there in the sky, the speaker said, just floating along.

He made his jump from the chair and saw it float on away from him, Mr. Yount continued. He tried moving his legs and arms to get himself straightened out. Then he pulled the cord of the parachute and it opened perfectly, so down he went.

Beneath him was a mountainous country with many trees, said the speaker, but just that day was McMillin. He landed in a little spot of freshly plowed ground, a cornfield, and received nothing worse than a bruised nose.

Another plane shown in a film by Mr. Yount was the Banshee. Also a jet that has a greater speed, about 600 miles per hour, and thinner wings. The jet, the speaker explained, does not need to warm up and he went on to tell that the Banshee performs with all the ease and grace of smaller planes.

Now, there is a photoplane, too, said Mr. Yount, for in place of being a bomber cameras are put in to replace the guns. The cameras, he said, are automatic and are controlled by the speed of the plane so the pictures do not blur.

In telling of new air force planes Mr. Yount showed pictures and gave an interesting story of the 85-Goblin or parasite plane. It never touches the ground, he said, because it has no landing gear. This plane, he said, was designed for protection of the long range bombers as a fighter plane. Fighter planes with bombers had no way to refuel. But with the parasite plane the speaker said, it goes back to the bomber to refuel and rearm. It is still in just the experimental stage, he said. But it has a sky hook by which it is attached to the underneath part of the bomber looking like a slight bulge on the bomber. The pilot of the Goblin keeps in constant touch with the mother plane and knows its whereabouts at all times through radar.

Mr. Yount, a former Sedalian and son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Yount, 1809 West Third, was introduced by Mrs. Herb E. Studer, current topics chairman for the afternoon.

A luncheon in honor of the speaker and his wife, the former Jane Harris, and also a Sedalian, preceded the program.

Mrs. H. A. Hite, art and drama chairman, announced that Mrs. Gustar Goetsch, first vice president of the Eighth District Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs of St. Louis, will be the speaker next Monday at which time she will give a talk in color on "Birds."

A luncheon will be given in honor of Mrs. Goetsch with reservations to be in by Friday.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Mrs. Dimmitt Hoffman.

Mozart Club Recital Sunday

Mrs. Jewel Harter Thomas held the recital of the Mozart Music club at her home Sunday afternoon at 3:30.

Dr. Harvey Smith World Community Day Speaker

Dr. Harvey Baker Smith of Marshall addressed the Sedalia Council of Church Women at its annual observance of World Community Day held Friday at the Trinity Lutheran church, Tenth and Osage.

The speaker stressed unity among churches and said that "You are only as great as the things you do together. What helps one church helps every church in the community."

Dr. Smith deplored the lack of brotherhood in the world and stated there was a need to study together and if there is to be peace it is necessary to rise above the physical into the spiritual.

A service of worship was led by Mrs. Ernest Liebel, president of the Sedalia council, assisted by Mrs. Luther Landis, vice-president, Mrs. David Richards and Miss Mabel DeWitt.

Thirty-one blankets, other bedding and cash donations were dedicated to the relief of the world's homeless people in a service of dedication by Mrs. Harry Runge, Christian World Relations chairman.

Ushering was in charge of Mrs. Charles Plumlee and Mrs. Pat Clark.

The service was closed with benediction by the Rev. C. A. Freeberg.

Housewarming Given Hudsons

A house warming shower was given Oct. 29, honoring Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hudson who recently moved into their new home.

W. Blain gave an inspiring spiritual life talk. Mrs. H. E. Lindstrom presented the program on "Latin American Welfare," assisted by Mrs. John Perdue and Mrs. Frank Fields.

During the program, Mrs. George Lovercamp and Mrs. Lee F. Soxman sang a duet. A special offering was taken for the week of prayer.

Mrs. R. W. Oman and her committee served the noon luncheon followed by a review of the mission study books by Mrs. George Lovercamp.

Marriage Doesn't Change Husbands, So Wives Say

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the things wives always say to their husbands on wedding anniversaries is:

"Marriage hasn't changed you a bit."

They could pronounce this sentence in a way to make it sound flattering. But usually it has a note of resignation in it, as if they were discussing the Long Island railroad, which changes about as much as the Washington Monument.

This is my own fourteenth wedding anniversary. And though I shower my Ozark bride with rosebuds and ply her with sirloin, I know that sometime during the celebration Frances will say rather wistfully:

"But, you know, marriage hasn't changed you a bit. You're just the same as you were the day we were married."

And that will sound odd to me, as it does to most husbands. We don't know just what our wives really expected us to turn into, but we do know that marriage has been a soft cocoon of chance. Certainly we aren't the same as we were in our bachelor prime—er, I mean time.

What are some of the changes? Well, one man's story:

When I was single I used to have to turn off the alarm clock in the morning. That doesn't happen often anymore.

My breakfast once consisted of a bottle of cream soda and a sack of salted nuts. Frances taught me that country scrambled eggs and hot tea are just as digestible. Through her I learned how wonderful well-cooked food can be—that it can be fun as well as fuel.

I have learned not to go into the kitchen and dry my hands on the dish towels. (This took years.) I wear slippers now, instead of running around the house barefoot.

I no longer wipe my nose on the dinner napkin. (At least while anyone is watching.)

The bartender no longer cashes my paycheck. I bring it home in my mouth and Frances takes it to the bank. (The banker doesn't know me, but he bows when she comes through his door.)

I have more buttons on my shirts than I did in the old days, and fewer holes in my socks.

I no longer get run over by milk wagons late at night, and I don't sprain my ankle playing softball any more. In fact I am 25 pounds heavier, and go up stairs one at a time.

Falling hair has changed me from a lowbrow to a highbrow, and given me a faintly intellectual look.

I no longer whistle out loud every time a pretty girl passes. (I hardly even pucker my lips.) I have learned how to button up the back of a lady's dress (at home) and light her cigaret (in company.)

I have forgotten all but two telephone numbers—the one at home, the one at the office.

I found a hair—a gray hair at that—growing out of my ear the other day. (That never happened when I was single.)

When we have a cocktail party, I only invite 10 extra strange people—instead of 20.

But most of all, I have changed in getting accustomed to marriage itself. The day I was trundled to the altar I had a wild momentary doubt that I would ever really get used to coming home to the same human being the rest of my life.

That has turned out, however, to be the best part of the deal. Single freedom? I wouldn't trade places with a nasty old bachelor for a free key to Fort Knox.

Where do wives get that idea anyway—the idea that husbands don't change? Why, marriage makes a chameleon out of any man—a better chameleon, too. It's the wives who don't change.

Odds and Ends By News Staff

It was a big week-end for a group of girls when the parents of one went out of town and the rest of them decided they had better be her guardians while her folks were away.

The thing they did most was eat and that they did at all hours. One of the lovely young creatures forgot she had been on a diet for two days and probably gained back more than she lost during her diet, that is if she lost any. There were club sandwiches with potato salad, chicken dinners, hamburger sandwiches and in between meals and before going to bed there were more sandwiches.

One girl declared she couldn't join the party for the first night but she would spend the evening with them—then got so sleepy that she lay down on the floor and went to sleep. When she woke up she was too sleepy to go home so she just crawled in a bed.

Only one girl had a date that night—the hostess—if she was a hostess. When she came home and started to go to bed she found she didn't have a bed—she hadn't counted on the girl who didn't intend to spend the night there, so she was one bed short. She couldn't even crawl in with her little sister because little sister had a girl friend spending the night, too. So, she went to one of the beds and told the girl in it to move over. The girl looked up sleepily, turned over and took all the cover.

But in another room another girl was having trouble. The girl in bed with her, who happened to be the girl on a diet, kicked, tumbled, tossed, threw her arms and even talked in her sleep—something about a new hat.

This gay affair of eating and sleeping—or not sleeping—lasted two nights and a day. Then came Monday morning. It was the great ordeal of getting up to go to work.

The alarm went off in one room, the girl on a diet reached over, turned it off and started to go back to sleep—but the other girl, who had been kept awake most of the night, was still awake and the girl on a diet couldn't turn her off like she did the alarm clock. She finally had to give up and get ready for work.

The girl of the house left a bit earlier than the rest and having no key to the front door left it unlocked and started merrily on her way. The last two out, feeling that doors should always be locked and wanting to take good care of everything, flipped the little night latch and securely locked the door.

At noon when the girl returned home she found herself completely locked out. She no only didn't have a key, but the back door was locked and there were storm windows at all the windows leaving her out in the cold. And she probably prayed a little prayer that mother and daddy would get home that afternoon as was planned and not remain away another day or so.

It is nice to have such good friends, thinks she, but there is just such a think as being too thoughtful. Of course, she could have spent the night with one of the girls, but after all there comes a time when you really need a good night's sleep.—H.L.

We all hate to admit it but there comes a time when we can't seem to tell one figure from the other and unless we are in bright light and holding the paper at a certain distance we read things wrong.

That is just what has happened twice lately to a Sedalia woman who has turned in items to the newspaper for meetings to be held. She just wasn't in a place where the light was too good and she simply read the notes wrong and reported it as she read it.

"I just don't like to give up on this," said she, "but I'm going to have to get me some glasses. I don't like to think it, but I can't see as well as I used to."

Then she added: "I do have a pair of glasses—but I can't see with them either—and that doesn't help at all—"

P. S.—The gal who wanted to cut her hair has found her scissors and the things she said when she found them were probably as sharp as the scissors—at least as sharp as she thinks they are now.

All the time they have been in hubby's tool box and no telling what they have been cutting during her days and days of hunting for them.

But, anyway, she got her hair cut or rather trimmed. Her sister evidently thought the hair was at a bad stage, too, so got out her own scissors and started whacking.

And so, the scissors are found, the hair cut and everything should be all right even to her dreams being peaceful.—H.L.

New Way To Oil CALGARY, Alta. (AP)—A new method of locating oil and gas fields is attracting attention in Alberta. The new method proposes to determine the actual presence of oil or gas through the operation of electrical currents. This contrasts to seismograph operation, which can at best locate structures favorable to oil accumulation.

The method has been developed by Dr. F. W. Lee, former chief of the geophysical survey section of the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

Dr. Lee's method works the same as electric logs in wells already in operation.

Once Was Enough ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A runaway 1½-ton truck rammed into the living room of an apartment for the second time in 10 days.

The truck was being loaded at a beverage plant across the street when, a company spokesman said, it suddenly rolled out of an alleyway across the street and crashed into the apartment. The spokesman said he could not explain the accident.

Mrs. Mabel Fisher commented: "It's fortunate none of us were in the living room. The last time my father had to be treated for shock."

Churches Can 1,600 Cans
Of Meat For Overseas Needy

By Mrs. Charles Harris

VERSAILLES—On Monday and Tuesday the congregations of Mt. Zion and Bethel churches joined in a canning for relief project, processing approximately 1,600 cans of beef, pork and poultry which will be sent overseas for distribution among the distressed and starving people.

The canning was done at the Roy C. Gerber farm Tuesday. The use of a portable canner, furnished by the South Central Menomonic conference, made the canning much easier. The meat from seven hogs, 12 beef cattle and 160 chickens that was processed was donated by the people of the community. Each can bears the label, "In the Name of Christ" and at the bottom of the label bears the name of the cooperating churches.

Truman Has Worried About Eisenhower's Candidacy Since 1948

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON.—How worried Harry Truman has always been over General Eisenhower's running for president was first indicated by a conversation which Truman had with some of his closest advisers in June 1948 when a move was on to draft Eisenhower on the Democratic ticket.

The conference took place on the newly built $15,000 White House "back porch," then under Republican fire, and the most important adviser present was White House jester George Allen, who happened to be a good friend both of the President and General Eisenhower.

Truman was worried sick over the prospect of Ike's running, and he made little attempt to disguise his worry from those sitting with him in the cool of the June evening.

He knew, from political soundings throughout the country, that Ike could take the Democratic convention easily if he announced. Such assorted Democratic leaders Jimmy Roosevelt in California, Mayor Hague in Jersey City, Senator Olin Johnston of California, Senator-to-be Paul Douglas in Chicago, Carl Rice of Kansas and Mayor O'Dwyer in New York had made their views all too clear.

So, Mr. Truman, determined not to be a political "accident" and determined to vindicate himself at the polls, stewed mentally over means of taking Eisenhower out of the race.

George Allen was optimistic. He agreed to leave the next day for New York, promised to come back with a letter from the general guaranteeing that he would not run. Allen did not think there would be much trouble about it.

Other were not so optimistic. Finally it was agreed to telephone Milton Eisenhower, then president of Kansas State university, now president of Penn State, and formerly an adviser in the Truman administration.

This was done. Milton assured the President's emissary that his brother was not going to run. Immediately thereafter, George Allen confirmed this by getting a definite public statement from the general.

Milton In Reverse
Today, however, Milton Eisenhower has not given the Democrats a similar assurance. On the contrary he has privately told Senator Jim Duff of Pennsylvania, chief Eisenhower booster, that his brother will run — and on the Republican ticket.

President Truman has known this for some time. One way he knew it was an indication from his friend and Ike's friend George Allen. For early last summer, the President invited George aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg and had a friendly talk about the world picture and Eisenhower.

Among other things, Truman told Allen that he considered the North Atlantic pact one of the most important cornerstones for world peace, and that Eisenhower's leadership was essential to it. In fact, he praised Eisenhower as one of the most constructive forces in Europe.

But he added that he was worried by Republican statements that they had assurances Ike was available for the GOP nomination; and he felt that both the United States and our Allies should know whether Ike was running the North Atlantic pact or running for president.

Truman suggested that the two were not compatible and that every move the general made in Paris would become a political issue back home if people felt he was a candidate.

Ike As A Democrat
However, if Eisenhower really wanted to be president, Truman told George Allen that he would be much more at home in the Democratic party than with the Republicans. In that event, the President indicated that he would not have to run openly, but could be "summoned" to the presidency. In fact, Truman even hinted that he might like to make the nominating speech himself.

The President then suggested that George Allen fly to Paris and have a heart-to-heart talk with Eisenhower. Allen in turn suggested that Mr. Truman write a friendly note in his own handwriting, summarizing his views.

George Allen delivered the note in Paris, and when he returned, reported at the White House that Eisenhower would not quit the North Atlantic pact in the near future to run for president, but since the NATO job would be completed by next spring, he would have plenty of time to decide whether he was interested in politics.

In any event, Eisenhower definitely promised to talk to Truman before he did anything.

Whistling At The Duke
As Congressman Harley Staggers of West Virginia was being introduced to Princess Elizabeth, he impulsively remarked:

"Your highness, I am curious about one thing. I understand that some of our American girls have been whistling at your handsome husband. What do you think about that?"

Philip, standing at his wife's side, pricked up his ears.

"What was that you said?" he inquired.

Congressman Staggers repeated the question, Elizabeth and Philip looked at each other, then burst out laughing.

"Oh, that happens all the time, wherever we go," the princess replied, with an admiring glance at the duke.

The duke then asked Staggers where he was from and what his job was. Informed that he was a Congressman, Philip declared: "Oh, you're one of these statesmen."

"Not exactly," grinned the West Virginian, who is 44 years old. "I'm not old enough to be a statesman. I'm just a public servant for my constituents."

Note—After his first meeting with Elizabeth, President Truman told a friend: "The thing that impresses and delights me most about her is that she doesn't act like royalty is supposed to act. She's one of the most wholesome and winsome little girls I've ever met."

Eisenhower-Merry-Go-Round

Since the Vatican appointment, many political observers are now swinging round to the view that Truman does not want to run for a third term. . . . this observer has always said that Truman did not want to run—unless Taft was the GOP candidate, in which case he would be sorely tempted. Truman's first choice to be Democratic nominee long has been Chief Justice, Vinson, a man with a wealth of executive experience. . . . while Truman and friends were convinced Ike would not run in 1948, a group of Democratic leaders, led by Jack Arvey of Chicago, were equally convinced he would.

Arvey kept assuring Jimmy Roosevelt, Senator Tydings and others that he had "the word," but no one ever knew where he got the word. The word, however, came from Morton Downey, who parlayed "When Irish Eyes Are Shining" into a close friendship with Democratic leaders and a directorship in general Aniline and film. Morton, who golfed frequently with Eisenhower, at the Westchester country club, gave "the word" to Arvey at the Blackstone hotel in Chicago where Morton was singing. And that was the thread on which the great Eisenhower boom of 1948 hung.

THE STORY: On her first morning after her arrival at Black Fir, Elizabeth Baownell, a nurse, realizes that there is an unwholesome atmosphere about the place. It is heightened by attitudes of various members of the family. But Mrs. Lucien Steinhart, Elizabeth's patient, is pleasant.

VIII

"NOW tell me about your young man, Beth." Old Emily Steinhart, propped against the pillows of her huge four-poster, smiled at the girl sharing her supper tray. Her brown eyes twinkled with new vitality. Elizabeth felt her cheeks grow warm.

"He isn't my young man, Mrs. Steinhart. I've seen Bill Devanter exactly twice, both times very briefly."

"Sometimes that's enough."

Elizabeth toyed with a bit of artichoke heart. How surprised she had been that afternoon when the young surveyor showed up to return the leather gloves she had left in his station wagon. Now two fine lines formed in the center of her forehead. The old lady observed them and smiled one-sidedly.

"Why are you frowning, my dear?"

Elizabeth's face lit up in one of the rare smiles that altered it so. "I didn't realize I was that transparent. It's just that I don't possibly see how I mislaid my gloves. I know they were tucked through the loop of my handbag."

Mrs. Steinhart managed a small gasping laugh.

"If you had grown up in the '90s, you wouldn't have to think twice. In those days men were more resourceful about finding ways to see again a young lady in whom they were interested. Now I think your young man is just a bit old-fashioned or perhaps far-sighted."

Elizabeth stared at her. It had never occurred to her that Bill Devanter might have purposely taken her gloves. Mrs. Steinhart went on: "Next time he calls please bring him up to see me. When is he coming again?"

"He suggested taking me to see the lumber camp where he's staying but I told him I couldn't leave Black Fir."

The thin lips twitched. "That's absurd. I want you to go. Ollie will sit with me."

"No, I'm your nurse. It's part of my job."

"I'm not as sick as all that." Quickly she put a hand to her lips as though to catch the words that had inadvertently slipped out. "I mean, I'm perfectly safe here. In bed, nothing will happen to me."

ELIZABETH'S expert fingers felt the slender blue-veined wrist. "Your pulse is steady."

"Never mind my arteries! I'd like to know more about this young man if we're going to give him a chunk of our land."

"But I thought—that is, your son gave me to understand you were going to contest the state's action in court."

"Lawyers' fees would be more than the land is worth. No, if it belongs to the state they can have it for the tax refund. It will be a nice park. I used to walk in those woods often and others will enjoy its beauties."

"That's a very tolerant attitude."

"The years do that to one. It's my young grandchildren who object. They know that some day everything will go to them in a three-way division. They're young and greedy."

Elizabeth hoped Mrs. Steinhart wouldn't ask how things had gone at luncheon. During the afternoon Elizabeth had deftly skirted the subject. But now, with the heightened discernment of the sick, Mrs. Steinhart read her mind.

"My dear, you haven't mentioned luncheon with my family."

"It was an excellent luncheon. You have a marvelous chef."

"Ollie keeps Mrs. Murphey on her toes. Food is a passion with him; sometimes I think his exaggerated interest in it is psychological."

Elizabeth thought Ollie would certainly be one for Dr. Alexi's book. The bright eyes studied her assiduously.

"I meant the conversation, my dear, not the food."

"Oh," Elizabeth floundered. "It concerned Mr. Benson and Mr. Riggs mostly. Your son didn't know they were coming."

"Poor Ollie is never treated with the respect he deserves. I suppose Lucia forgot to tell him?"

"Yes."

THE old lady sighed and for a few minutes her tiny white fingers plucked nervously at the bedclothes. "Lucia is a disappointment to me. She's vain and selfish with an adder's tongue. She is in great need of some deep experience that will shock her out of herself. But it may be too late for that."

"She's young."

"Two years older than you, my dear. I'm afraid her instability comes from her mother. An actress. We advised John against the marriage but he wouldn't listen. He was much in love and they did manage to find some sort of off-again-on-again happiness before he died 10 years ago."

She closed her eyes and when she opened them again they were no longer clear but veiled with the far-off shadows of reminiscence.

"You see, my dear, Lucia and I began to think we would never have children. So we adopted Ollie. As so often happens, that seemed to be the necessary key. John came along shortly, then Ada. She's Lee's mother. A sweet girl but never strong. She lives in California."

She paused, breathed deeply before going on.

"When I had this stroke, Ollie telegraphed them. Ada is too much an invalid to make the trip and Cleo had theater commitments she could not break. They sent their children."

The old eyes suddenly grew brilliant with determination.

"They thought I was going to die. But I won't till I see things through!"

The biggest ALARM of all...

WHEN FIRE STRIKES, you may hear one alarm . . . or two . . . even a third. But the biggest alarm of all is the alarm in your heart.

"Was anybody caught inside? Anybody I know . . . hurt? . . . burned? How'd it start? How much loss?"

You burn up with unsatisfied suspense and curiosity . . . until you see your newspaper.

You grab your paper and all the answers are there. First, in detail, full of local color — as it never is anywhere else.

It's there with all the other news that matters . . . Plus a hundred things you'll find nowhere else.

It doesn't take a fire. You can be just as wrought up about a plan in the town council to widen your street. You never know what's coming . . . so you read your paper every day.

Everybody else is just like you. Everybody reads the newspaper every day. To a housewife, the fire sale can be just as important as the fire.

That's why when you have something to sell, the newspaper is the one place to reach all the people all the time.

In advertising, why deal in fractions? . . .

Magazines reach only fractions of your market. Each one appeals to some people — not to others. No magazine is read by everyone who can possibly buy.

Radio and TV programs reach only fractions of your market. Each one appeals to only a special audience — sports fans, homemakers, kids, etc. And how many of these can listen at the time you broadcast?

The newspaper talks to everybody in town. All your customers read the paper — at the time they choose, for as long as they choose.

Only the newspaper is first with the most news . . . the most people . . . the most advertisers!

The newspaper is always "first with the most"

Wonder Drugs Losing Their Effectiveness as Years Pass

By Rennie Taylor
Associated Press Science Reporter
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5—(AP)—The wonder drugs are losing their punch like aging prize fighters, and doctors are beginning to speculate on where their next antibiotics are coming from.

Penicillin, streptomycin, aureomycin and chloromycetin all are less effective against microbes now than they were two to four years ago, says a study made by Dr. Dwight M. Kohns, Dr. Matthew H. Fusillo and Dr. Monroe J. Romansky of Walter Reed army hospital, Washington, D. C.

Their study was presented as an exhibit at the clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons.

The most striking example shown was the weakening of penicillin against golden staphylococcus, a germ which causes abscesses and boils.

In 1947, the army doctors said, the survival rate of this microbe was only 30 per cent in test tubes involving standardized doses of the drug. In 1948 and 1949, 59 per cent of the microbes survived the same dose.

In 1950 the survival rate was about 61 per cent. It probably would have gone higher, the experimenters reported, except for the fact that some of the test microbes were taken from army personnel just returned from Korea. Against these Korean germs the drug still was 65 per cent effective.

The Korean germs probably were more susceptible than the same kind of germs in the U. S. because penicillin has been used here eight years and only one year in Korea.

Against this same germ streptomycin, once 95 per cent effective, dropped to 76 per cent.

Streptomycin did show a small gain in effectiveness against colon bacteria and against some other intestinal microbes. Chloromycetin also made a slight gain in potency against the germs that cause eggs to sour.

"Which do you mean—the estimate, or the estimate of the difference between the estimate and what it's gonna cost?"

King George Warns Nation Of Inflation

Tells Parliament Drastic Action Must Be Taken

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(P)—King George VI warned parliament today that growing inflation threatens Britain's defense program and the government must take "drastic action."

Prime Minister Winston Churchill's new Conservative regime will make proposals to fight inflation "in the immediate future," said the monarch in his traditional speech from the throne opening the first formal session of the new parliament.

Churchill was scheduled to elaborate on the speech which the prime minister and his cabinet had prepared—later today (about 10:30 a. m. EST).

Since the king is still confined to Buckingham palace recuperating from a serious lung operation, the speech was read for him at a joint meeting of the Houses of Lords and Commons, held in the lords' chamber.

The king told parliament that a "full disclosure must be made to the nation" of the recent serious deterioration in Britain's economic affairs.

He described the problem as "overshadowing all other domestic matters" which face the new government.

Turning to international affairs, King George said Britain is determined to stand fast in the Suez canal zone and "will try to repair the injuries our rights and interests have suffered in Persia."

The king said Egypt's attempts to oust British troops from the canal zone and seize sovereignty over the Sudan, now jointly administered by Egypt and Britain, are "illegal and without validity."

He said Britain, the United States, France and Turkey will "press forward with their proposals for joint defense arrangements in the middle east."

Under this proposal, already once rejected by Cairo, the four powers and Egypt would enter into a joint defense arrangement for the vital canal zone, he said.

Meanwhile, the king asserted, Britain "will maintain its position in the canal zone under the terms of the 1936 treaty, and will safeguard the international highway."

He said also that "nothing can be allowed to interfere with the rights of the Sudan to decide for themselves the future status of their country."

The king said the government "will faithfully support the United Nations as a world instrument for peace and security."

"They (the government) will continue to play their part in Korea," he added, "with the aim of restoring peace and well-being."

Ike a Contender Because He Didn't Say 'Yes' or 'No'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(P)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower flies back to Paris today leaving behind a conspicuous refusal to say if he is available for the 1952 presidential race.

The fact that he didn't say "yes" and he didn't say "no" publicly—or perhaps even privately—leaves the five-star general a possible top contender for either the Republican or Democratic nominations.

Even President Truman apparently got no current inkling of the general's future political plans, although the possibility was not foreclosed that they discussed how long Eisenhower will remain on the job as commander of North Atlantic treaty organization (NATO) forces in Europe.

Eisenhower told reporters last night that no politics came up—"not a bit"—in his hour and 20-minute luncheon with the President at Blair House yesterday.

Asked what the two did talk about, he referred questions to the White House. There Joseph Short, presidential press secretary, said he didn't know just what was discussed. No one else attended the luncheon, he added.

Preliminary Hearing Hits Snag In Court

Rush, Newbill, Both Accused In Dickman Death, Raise Question

The preliminary hearing of James E. Rush and Nat Newbill, accused with Mrs. Margaret Stinnett of first degree murder in connection with the choking and bludgeoning death of Alfred E. Dickman, jeweler and optical man, here May 11, came to a temporary impasse this morning.

The case was called before Magistrate W. W. Blain and arguments began immediately as to whether Magistrate Blain was empowered to sit in the case after a severance had been sought and a change of venue granted one defendant, Mrs. Stinnett.

With the assembly room filled practically to seating capacity, the morning procedure was taken up in arguments between counsel for the defendants over jurisdiction of Magistrate W. W. Blain as to the cases of James E. Rush and Nat Newbill.

One defendant, Mrs. Margaret Stinnett, had been granted a venue change in magistrate court to Magistrate Joseph Berry, of Warsaw, Benton county.

The defense contention, through Attorneys William Brown and Wesner and Wesner, was that any separation as applied to preliminary procedure applied equally to all defendants.

Prosecuting Attorney Michael Bogutski cited sections of law in rulings relative to such and this was contended by the defense that the cases be presented and read opinions on before the court did not apply to preliminary procedure, but to the higher courts.

Insistence was made by the prosecutor that the hearings be held as to Rush and Newbill.

The defense stated two vitally important witnesses were not in court and for that reason felt that further delay was their right that they might be contacted and consulted before further action was attempted.

Prosecutor Bogutski insisted on going ahead with the case and after some exchanges between the attorneys for the state and defense, Attorney Fred F. Wesner stated he had a writ of prohibition prepared for filing in circuit court.

Magistrate Berry, of Benton county, who was to be on the bench in the hearing of Mrs. Stinnett, was not in court, but it was announced he would be present at this juncture in the case the court announced that it was continued until 1:30 p. m.

Vols Remain In Top Spot Of Gridders

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(P)—Mighty Tennessee's football team is the country's No. 1 college team favorite for the third straight week in the estimation of the sports editors and broadcasters who participated in the weekly Associated Press poll.

The Tennessee outfit, which trounced North Carolina Saturday 27 to 0, snafed 60 of the 152 first place votes and remained on top of the heap with 1,230 points.

The shake-up beneath the Southeastern Conference club, however, was terrific with idle Michigan State slumping all the way down from second to fifth in Illinois, victory by 7 to 0 over Michigan in a snowstorm, climbing from third to second. Maryland and Princeton also vaulted over the Spartans.

Baylor and California dropped out of the select group, their places going to Stanford and Texas. Below Michigan State came Southern California, Stanford, Georgia Tech, Wisconsin and Texas in that order.

Forty teams were mentioned on the flood of ballots, one oddity being that every member of the Southwest circuit except Rice drew at least one vote.

The standings, first place in brackets, points awarded on basis of 10 for first, nine for second, etc.

Top Ten	Points
Tennessee (60)	1,230
Illinois (29)	1,150
Maryland (21)	1,019
Princeton (6)	997
Michigan State (12)	991
Southern California (6)	910
Stanford (8)	874
Georgia Tech (1)	383
Wisconsin (3)	344
Texas	287

Sporting Notes About Sedalia

From Jefferson City comes an article about Morrow Mason and his ability as a football and basketball official. It points out that Mason was rated the top high school grid official in the state last season for the number of games worked, 16, and ranked third best among the state's basketball officials.

For the past several seasons, Mason has worked many cage and grid games in which Smith-Cotton's Tigers were a participant. At all times we have heard nothing but praise from S-C coaches on his performances. To top that though, Mason is well liked by the players. When a player plays a hard, clean game Mason will let him know it. Such was the case last year when he officiated the Tiger-St. Peters game, giving special praise to "Whitey" Bryant.

We hope he will continue as an official in Smith-Cotton games in the future.

Speaking of Whitey Bryant, we note that he has been out of the Missouri Valley Vikings line-up for the past two weeks due to a leg injury. However, he will be read and in the starting defensive line-up for Valley's big game against William Jewell Friday night.

A tip from an informed source on the Taney county deer hunting situation claims that if a hunter has an established reputation he will be permitted to hunt there, providing he promises to kill no does. Taney countians are against the "any season" because they claim open season on does would deplete the deer herds beyond the possibility of a quick comeback. We won't know if our source is accurate until the total bag for Taney county is released.

Girls Clash In Semi-Final On 1st Mat Card

Sedalia wrestling fans will see in the local ring two new girls in Rose Marie Alvarez, 128, who hails from Madrid, Spain, and Connie O'Connor, pretty 130-pound wrestler from Toledo, Ohio. They will meet in the semi-final event on the wrestling card Thursday night.

Both girls, new to this section of the country, will provide some of the exciting active wrestling for the local followers of the "square-circle" sport to watch. Both are exceptionally good according to Gus Spartan, the new promoter of wrestling in Sedalia for the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion.

Neil Warren, a 225 heavyweight from Columbus, Ohio, no newcomer to the local ring but new on the recently formed circuit, returns to Sedalia to meet George Lipold, St. Joseph, 220 heavy-weight in the opener. Lipold is rather new at the mat sport, but shows promise of becoming a real contender, like two other St. Joseph boys, Sonny Meyers and Ronnie Etchinson.

The feature event brings together Frank Altman, 230, Seattle, Wash., and Johnnie Dobbs, 225, of Omaha, Neb. This match will be a two-fall 90-minute event.

Dressen Will Run Dodgers Next Season

BROOKLYN, Nov. 6—(P)—Chuck Dressen, hung in effigy not so long ago by Dodger fans, will be back as Brooklyn manager in 1952.

Dressen, although he hasn't signed a contract, was rehired yesterday for one year at a salary estimated at $30,000.

Brooklyn President Walter O'Malley announced the retention of Dressen in a press conference. It came as no surprise. Dodger second baseman Jackie Robinson confirmed rumors that Dressen would be retained last Friday in Los Angeles. Robinson said the players were told Dressen would return.

O'Malley began the press conference by saying, "Charley Dressen has not been signed for 1952 but he will be as soon as he comes east."

Regarding the terms of the contract O'Malley said, "Chances are it will be the kind of contract that we are beginning to like—one year, no trial clauses. Just a straight contract. If he thinks he's underpaid, we probably could get together," he continued. "But I don't think he's overpaid."

Dressen, whose Dodgers blew a 1½-game lead and lost the National league pennant in a play-off to the New York Giants, was very happy over the news.

"That's swell," Dressen said in Oakland, Calif. "They've always treated me fair and I appreciate the way they deal with me. I've worked for a lot of ball clubs and I never bothered much after the season was over about signing for next year. I never bothered to push it."

Brooklyn Lost Money During '50

BROOKLYN, Nov. 6—(P)—Walter O'Malley, Brooklyn Dodger president, opened the club's books for a quick peek today to reveal the entire organization last $129,318 in 1950.

Aroused by congressional talk that baseball is a big business monopoly, O'Malley quotes figures on the losses of the Brooklyn farm system. He used 1950 figures because '51 returns still are incomplete.

"The losses from the farm system are so staggering," he said. "Through the farm systems, the majors actually subsidize the minors and keep baseball at a national level. Of course, we do it for a selfish purpose—to get players."

Maglie Has 64-14 Record in 3 Years

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(P)—Sal Maglie, New York Giants' pitcher, ace, has a three-year major league pitching record of 46-14 for a .767 winning average.

The right-hander from Niagara Falls, N. Y., had a 5-4 year in 1945. His first in the majors. After a lapse while he visited Mexico and Canada, Maglie returned to the Giants with an 78-4 record in 1950. Last season he piled up a 23-6 mark.

The "sky survey" being made at the Palomar Observatory of the California Institute of Technology is being recorded through the giant 48-inch "Big Schmidt" telescope.

College Grid Attendance Up 5 Percent

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(P)—College football is reversing the sports attendance slump with a 5 per cent increase according to a survey of 89 schools for the first half of the 1951 season.

A similar check at the same time last season showed a 2 per cent decline with television catching the blame.

The east, where the new controlled TV policies of the NCAA would seem to have most effect, shows a surprising 14 per cent increase. The south and far west each are up 6 per cent.

Ohio State continues to pack them in with 305,191 for four home dates through Oct. 27, tops in the nation. Michigan is right behind with 301,739 for four at home.

Red Grange Sees Nothing Wrong With Football

CHICAGO, Nov. 6—(P)—Red Grange, Illinois' galloping ghost, doesn't think there is anything wrong with college football of today.

"I'm always hearing and reading that there's so much wrong with football," Grange told the Herald-American Quarterback club yesterday. "There's nothing wrong with it. It gives millions of people entertainment every week-end. There may be some over-enthusiasm. My only gripe is that the over-enthusiasm didn't start 25 years ago. I could have used an automobile."

Grange said football scholarships were a means to provide "thousands and thousands of youths with an education they otherwise would never get."

"I think colleges should provide football players with tuition, board and room and if somebody wants to do something extra, that's okay," he added. "Enthusiasm is typical American."

Grange said that alumni should want their schools to have good players.

"I took a kid out to lunch several times last summer trying to sell him on Illinois. He wound up at Northwestern."

It will take 2,000 pictures to give an overall picture of the heavens in great depth, the California Institute of Technology estimates.

Johnny Bright Re-injures His Jaw--Brightest Career In Football Has Ended

DES MOINES, Nov. 6—(P)—Johnny Bright, college football's "Mr. Offense," has played his last game for Drake university.

The great Negro halfback, the nation's all-time total offense leader, re-injured has broken jaw last Saturday and yesterday was advised by a dental surgeon to quit. The Bulldogs close their season at Wichita Saturday.

Bright, from Fort Wayne, Ind., received the broken jaw against Oklahoma A. and M. Oct. 20. The incident brought Drake charges of "intentional attacks" upon Bright by an Aggie player and prompted a Missouri Valley conference investigation.

In his first game since the injury, Bright accounted for three touchdowns and 204 yards in three quarters of play to fire Drake to a 35-20 victory over Great Lakes.

Praise for Losing Tigers, Worries for Winning Okla.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 6—(P)—Coach Don Faurot's Missouri Tigers lost their last game, 35-0, but he's praising them.

Coach Bud Wilkinson's Oklahoma Sooners won their last game 33-0, but he says he's worried about their progress.

Strange words? No, the two coaches are considered good football psychologists.

The Sooners and the Tigers clash at Columbia, Mo., this week-end.

Faurot has a young and comparatively inexperienced team that could use a little confidence.

They've won only two games this season and suffered a 35-0 setback at the hands of Maryland Saturday.

The Sooners, after dropping two early-season games to tough Southwest conference foes, have been rolling along lately and are considered an easy victor over Missouri. Wilkinson doesn't want them overconfident.

Wilkinson, speaking of his team's 33-0 victory over Kansas State, said yesterday the Kansas Sooners stopped the Sooners from scoring four times. He added:

"That makes me wonder whether we've improved as much as we should. You don't have much

Passion Play Matinees For Students

Schedule Made
For Days Schools
Will Send Youths

With the permission of city, county and parochial school authorities, special student matinees will be held for the world famous Black Hills Passion Play, featuring Josef Meier in the role of the Christ, at the Liberty theatre, Nov. 12 through 15. It was announced by Emory Bowman, president of the Sedalia Rotary club, local sponsors.

The age old Black Hills Passion Play will come to Sedalia at the close of a three-week run in Kansas City where it was seen by more than 30,000 people. There is a supporting cast of 125 featuring of course that sincere portrayal of "Jesus of Nazareth," by Josef Meier. Supporting Mr. Meier will be Clare Hume Meier in the role of Mary; the Mother; Mayela Kirshner as Mary Magdalene; Fred Hagan as Judas Iscariot; Richard Adams, as Simon Peter; Charles Arganbright, as Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor; George Dayton as Caiaphas, the high priest; Irene Webster as Salome and a score of others.

Heber Hunt and parochial school authorities have set up a schedule for attendance of students of public and parochial schools. Student tickets are on sale in each school at specially reduced prices for students. Students purchasing a ticket will be dismissed in time to attend one of these student matinees at 2 p.m. There will be no student matinee on the day of the opening performance, Monday, Nov. 12, as the entire day will be required by technicians in setting the properties on the stage of the Liberty theatre.

The schedule is as follows:
Tuesday, Nov. 13—Sacred Heart elementary, St. Patrick's, St. Joseph, Washington, Horace Mann, Broadway.

Wednesday, Nov. 14—Hubbard elementary, Jefferson, Mark Twain, Whittier, Sacred Heart high school.

Thursday, Nov. 15 — Smith-Cotton high school and Hubbard high school.

Pickets Wreck Meeting To End Big Dock Strike

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(P)—Rebel pickets wrecked a back-to-work meeting today, as New York's billion dollar wildcat dock strike went to a board of state fact-finders.

The state board drew a measure of hope from a decision by wildcat leaders to meet with them—and perhaps even act on their decision when it is reached.

The back-to-work plans centered around strike leader John (Gene) Sampson's 2,000-man local 791, AFL International Longshoremen's association.

The local is the spearhead of the strike that has moved more than 20,000 of the east coast's 65,000 longshoremen to revolt against a new contract. They want wage and other negotiations reopened.

More than 100 ships are idle. Joseph P. Ryan, president of the ILA, went over Sampson's head to try to set up a meeting of local 791. It was to decide whether to take a formal back-to-work vote.

Ryan's bitter rival, Sampson, massed several hundred pickets outside the lower west side meeting hall. More than 1,000 other local 791 members milled around.

Voters Choose 2 Governors, 4 Congressmen

Highlights Given
Of Major Elections
Being Held Today

By the Associated Press

In elections centering largely around state and local issues, voters today choose two governors, one of them without opposition, four members of Congress and scores of mayors.

The off-year elections have been pretty generally discounted by political observers as a tip-off on next year's presidential and congressional elections.

The most heat has been generated in several mayoral and other local elections, notably in Philadelphia.

Here are some highlights:

Kentucky—Vice President Barkley entered the campaign on behalf of Democratic Gov. Lawrence Wetherby and his slate of candidates for eight other state offices. Wetherby has support of all party factions in his race against Republican Eugene Siler.

Pennsylvania—Despite a two-to-one Republican edge in registration, Democrats are regarded as having their best chance yet to break the 68-year-old GOP rule in Philadelphia. The candidates for mayor: Dr. Daniel A. Poling, prominent Baptist minister and writer, Republican; Joseph S. Clark, now city comptroller, Democrat.

New York — Rudolph Halley, who became familiar to millions of television fans as counsel for the old Senate crime committee, is making a bid for the New York city council presidency, a post ranking second to that of mayor. Opposing him are Joseph T. Sharkey, lifetime Democratic wheelhorse; Rep. Henry J. Latham, four-term Republican congressman; and Clifford T. McAvoy, American Labor.

Perhaps the strangest campaign has been that in Boston. James Michael Curley conducted a "campaign" in which he did not once make an appeal to the voters since the primary six weeks ago. Mayor John B. Hynes, 53, then ran 31,000 votes ahead of the 77-year-old Curley, enough to make him a strong favorite for re-election. Boston elections are non-partisan; both Hynes and Curley are Democrats. Curley maintained silence in keeping with a pledge he gave after the primary.

At times of extreme flood, Guayra Falls on the Parana River between Paraguay and Brazil, has more than 8 times the water volume of Niagara.

Few people have penetrated the wilds of Labrador to see North America's second largest waterfall the Grand Falls of the Hamilton River.

Only 118 Communities Put Fluorine In Water for Teeth

By Frank Carey
DALLAS, Nov. 6.—(P)—A federal dental researcher today decried "resistance and indifference" to suggestions that communities add fluorine in the form of fluoride salt to their drinking water in an effort to reduce tooth decay.

Dr. John W. Knutson of the U.S. Public Health Service, declaring that just a year ago several national health organizations endorsed "controlled water fluorination," said:

"At present only 118 communities are fluoridating their public water supplies.

"I say 'only 118' because at that rate it will require 15 to 30 years to bring about fluoridation of the 16,750 public drinking water supplies in this country."

Saying there is evidence that a two-thirds reduction in tooth decay can be expected among the children drinking water containing a tiny amount of fluoride from birth, Dr. Knutson told the 45th annual meeting of the Southern Medical association:

"nevertheless, there are signs that this remarkable public health measure is not being accepted on the basis of scientific evidence alone, and that action is being delayed and postponed, not only by those who are conservative and slow to move on new methods, but also by those who are misinformed or misguided by half-truths, rumors, and emotional prejudices."

"...The job of educating the public regarding the benefits of water fluoridation has just begun, and our promotional efforts will have to be increased markedly if we are to counteract, successfully resistance and indifference based on misinformation and misunderstanding."

Prowl Car Light Shines on Couple As Man Kills Self

RICHMOND, Calif., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The prowler car's spotlight glared on a young couple.

"The man had his left arm around the woman and his right fist jammed in the small of her back," Officer D. J. Green reported. "We could hear her pleading, 'please don't kill me! Please let me go!'"

The man was husky 26-year-old Don Munson. The woman was his wife.

Police had been called by the girl's uncle, Jack Diamond. He reported Mrs. Munson sought refuge in his home but Munson forced her to leave at gunpoint.

The man and woman walked for six blocks. The glare of the spotlight never left them.

At the edge of a vacant lot, Mrs.

Munson called to officers: "Don't do anything. He'll shoot. I don't want to die."

Munson backed over the lot. He held his wife between himself and police. Other prowler cars sirened up.

The woman stumbled and fell. Munson dropped beside her. He asked: "Do you love me?"

"Yes. Yes!" In a high voice. Then a pistol cracked. Munson slumped, dead with a bullet through his brain.

The police report said: "suicide."

State Fair Gate Next Year Tax Free; Only 25 Cents

Missouri State Fair's 25 cent gate will probably be just two-bits next August, not 30 cents as it has been the past several years. W. E. "Bill" Preston, secretary, said today he had been notified by Frank Kingman, secretary of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions, that a new bill just passed has removed the 20 per cent admission tax for non-profit fairs. The bill affects only tax at outside gates, not the taxes for any other tickets sold on the grounds.

The move is in line with a desire Preston has had ever since he became secretary of the fair. He wanted an even money price for the gate to speed change-making. He could not lower the gate fee so it would figure to a quarter, however, since the state law sets the figure at 25 cents minimum and the tax had to be on top of that—making the 30 cents total.

Aerial View of Sweet Springs, Missouri

By Jack Allgaier

Sweet Springs can be best described as the "former Bethesda of the Middle West." The name applies for two reasons: one, the community possesses a mineral spring that was extremely well known for its healing qualities; secondly, the colorful past history, created through the drawing potential of the spring, still remains vividly imprinted in the memory of a town which at one time possessed what could have been one of America's leading resort meccas only to lose its prestige through a series of tragic setbacks.

The restless town of 1,600 still retains the spirit of initiative that was prevalent in its lost era of social prominence. The citizens who lived and participated in this period are reflections of the age. The former atmosphere of decorum, gaiety and activity is projected into the present town of Sweet Springs by these individuals who still speak eagerly yet reverently of the past.

Resort South of Town

The region's center of social life in the 19th Century was the Marmaduke Health Resort located south of the town proper. In 1875, Col. Leslie Marmaduke, wealthy St. Louisan and relative of John S. Marmaduke, later governor of Missouri, visited Sweet Springs to sample the water and test its medicinal qualities. He was so impressed with the results that the following year he and his brother, Col. D. W. Marmaduke, formed a company and purchased the spring and 30 acres of land from Dr. J. L. Yantis, then owner of the property.

Realizing the lucrative possibilities offered them in this project, the two immediately set to work building a luxurious resort around the famed spa. A rambling three-story hotel, complete with stables, heating plant and separate bathing pools for men and women, was constructed. A pagoda was erected over the spring and two uniformed Negro attendants were on duty to dispense the mineral water to the guests. Blackwater river ran close by the location and this was widened and dredged to allow steamer traffic. A steam launch, the Daisy, ran excursions between the Marmaduke resort and the McAllister Springs resort some miles away. Sailing and shell racing were also popularized along the stream. Water from the McAllister Springs was piped to the resort to supply the bathhouses. The water had to be carried in wooden pipes as the high mineral content soon eroded the metal pipes first used.

Mecca for Excursionists

The hotel attracted such large numbers of vacationers during the season that four trains were run over the Missouri Pacific line each day. A hack from the resort met each train and transported the passengers back to the hotel. Many wealthy visitors became so attached to the resort that they were granted special permission to build permanent cottages and homes of mansion proportions on the grounds.

Each guest list read like a page from the registry of the Ritz in New York; and year after year the parade of notables increased. One year, for example, the guests included among others Thomas Hart Benton, poet Eugene Fields and Rose Fields, Charles P. Chouteau, St. Louis capitalist and descendant of the city's founder, Bernard McFadden, physical instructor, Col. E. C. Moore, consul to Mexico, Senators F. M. Cockrell and George G. Vest, John C. Crittenden and D. R. Francis, former governors of Missouri, Dr. Morrison Mumford, owner of the Kansas City Times, Col. W. R. Nelson, owner of the Kansas City Star, Dr. Dawes, one of the nation's leading surgeons, Dr. Laws, president of Missouri University, and many other individuals politically and financially prominent at that time.

Excelsior Becomes Competitor

Sweet Springs' Golden Age of prosperity was not destined to continue for long. Excelsior Springs had opened as a competitive resort spot and gradually the vacationers drifted there. The New York orchestra which was brought to Sweet Springs each year at great expense to play for the balls throughout the season was not engaged one year; the guest list continued to dwindle and the grounds grew more deserted until finally the Marmadukes were forced to make the decision the residents of Sweet Springs had feared would be forthcoming.

The outcome, however, was not as disastrous as they had expected for the owners decided not to close the place entirely, but rather to convert the resort into a military school. This change came in 1891, 15 years after the spa had opened as a boon to the community. Marmaduke Military Academy was an immediate success and continued to prosper. The balls that had been so fashionable during the days of the resort trade were renewed; a parade ground was added to the academy and Sweet Springs once again settled back to enjoy the fruits of the Marmaduke investment.

Fire Burns Military Academy

Again the Marmadukes and Sweet Springs met disaster. In 1896 a fire broke out in a row of servants' cottages near the main building and quickly spread to the hotel which had been converted into the academy's administration building and dormitory. Lack of adequate fire fighting facilities prevented the community from extinguishing the blaze and by morning the building had been razed. The Marmadukes never attempted to rebuild the burned structure and their investment was abandoned.

The other buildings left unattended quickly fell to ruin and the spring was forgotten by all save the citizens of the town. Today the once majestic Marmaduke plant lies in pasture land. All that remains are a few of the cottages which were sold to local residents.

Town Dates Back to 1835

Sweet Springs as a town dates back to the arrival of A. B. Pennington in 1835. He built the first house along with a blacksmith shop and later erected a saw and grist mill on a nearby stream. He named the site Clayville. Other settlers soon followed and in 1838 S. G. Wentworth, founder of the Wentworth Military Academy at Lexington, Mo., and William Brown laid out the town. Brown paid Pennington $200 to have the town's name changed from Clayville to Brownville.

Several years later Dr. West was able to persuade the Missouri Pacific railroad to run a branch into Saline county and eventually into Sweet Springs, one of the county's leading trade centers. The first train was run through Sweet Springs on Christmas Day, 1871.

Tornado Kills 18 Persons

The only serious calamity in the history of the town occurred on April 18, 1882. A tornado struck in the southwest part of town leveling many of the frame business structures and several of the homes. Eighteen persons were killed and scores injured during the storm.

Two years later the town had been rebuilt and the citizens again gave consideration to changing the name. Due to postal difficulties resulting from the numerous other Brownvilles in Missouri and other parts of the country a group of residents presented a petition to the city fathers requesting the name be changed to Sweet Springs. In a city election the populace gave its consent and the name was duly changed.

One of Sweet Springs' other attractions was an artesian well which was brought in by a group of Sweet Springs business men. The group, believing there was oil nearby, drilled into a pocket of water which ruined their future oil prospects in that locale but produced a gushing stream of sulphur water which shot 50 feet into the air. Today the water continues to flow with its original force and still is attracting many visitors. The water, however, has been confined and is now fed into a five-acre lake located south of town in the Memorial Park, formerly the site of the Marmaduke Resort.

Industry Comes to Town

In 1922 a branch factory of the International Shoe company of St. Louis was opened in Sweet Springs. The company, which employs over 225 residents of the community and provides one of its main sources of wealth, has a yearly income of $1,000,000. The company, managed by A. F. G'Sell, now turns out 5,200 pairs of log-ger boots and work shoes.

The Emma Co-Op Elevator, managed by Pick Schelp, and built at great expense, has become one of Central Missouri's largest grain storage and processing plants. The plant is equipped with a seed warehouse, elevator and a phosphate plant is being installed. The Co-Op handles over two and a quarter million dollars worth of grain each year.

The Sweet Springs Co-Operative Creamery is also operating in the community. It is headed by Otto Heerman.

Newspaper Since 1872

One of the county's oldest newspapers, the Sweet Springs Herald, established in 1872, has continued to operate until the present day. The active weekly paper is now edited and published by Frank W. Farmer.

Recent attempts have been made to again sink oil wells into the promising land around Sweet Springs. The latest well has been drilled by Ray and Jim Butcher, about two miles west of town. Although no official announcement has been made by the owners many of the citizens claim that the two have already met with limited success and are now drilling deeper in hopes of striking an ever richer pocket of oil.

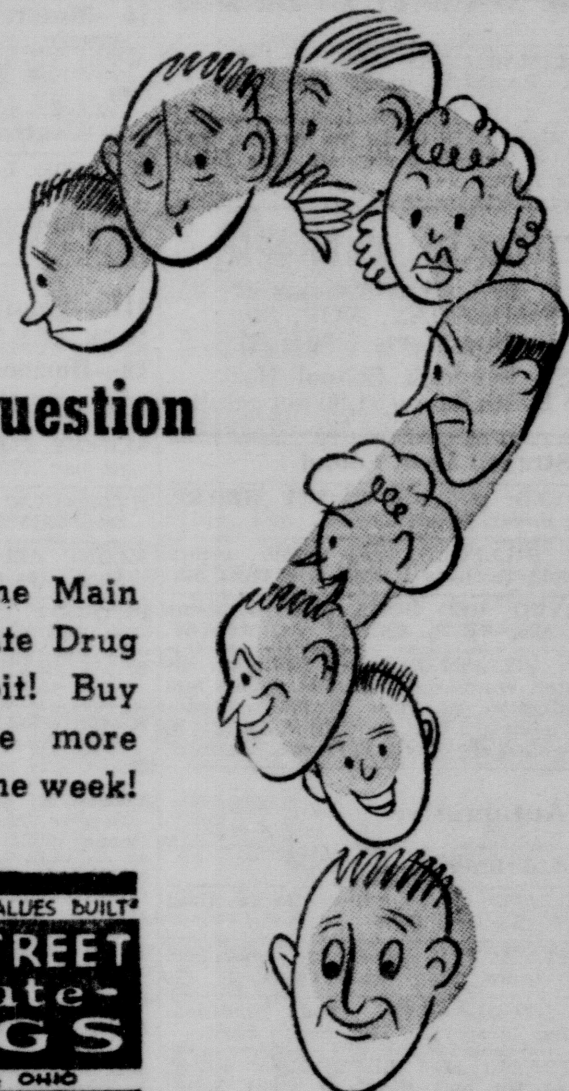

Sweet Springs is located about 25 miles northwest of Sedalia in the southwestern corner of Saline county. The Missouri State Highway 127 and the Lexington branch of the Missouri Pacific railroad run through the community. The town is a short distance

The town has six Protestant churches and one Catholic church. The town's Chamber of Commerce sponsors a Fall Festival each September. The American Legion puts on an annual Fourth of July celebration. Another community activity is the Sweet Springs Horse Show which is held each year and attracts participants from throughout Central Missouri.
